THE SCULLING MATCH. pecial Dispatch to The Bec.

London, November 29-10 p. m. What was expected to be the last of : long series of races on the Thames, which has been occupying the interest of the squatic sportingmen and largely of three continents, was rowed Monday morning. It would apparently have been an easy victory for Trickett, had it not been for an unfortunate accident which will probably render the race off, as the men do not seem to have been at fault. The match was for £200 a side between Ross and Trickett, and was arranged at a time when Trickett confidently expected to win the world's champion ship, and when Ross was equally confident of winning the regatta. Since the defeat of both men, the match has lost much of its interest. The attendance was comparatively small, and the betting lightly favored the Australian, as Ross was regarded as being out of condition. The course was that of the regular championship from the aquoduct at Putney to Shipmoat lake, a distance of about four miles and a quarter. The men got away together, Trickett having a trifle the old Mother Dil'on, died here yester-advantage, if there was any noticeable day, at the extraordinary age of 112 difference. The men fooled but did not stop. It is doubtful if either was seriously interfered with. From this point, however, to the finishing stroke, Trickett gained steadily and came in with three lenths ahead easily. Ross made claim of a foul, but the referee who had seen the accident decided that neither paraman was at fault, and declared the race off. It has been decided that Trickett and Ross shall row the race | Marie Silvia, formerly a well known over again on Saturday next.

ecial Dispatch to The Bee. WASPINGTON, November 29-4 p. n. -The Post Sunday morning printed the following: The gossip about the speakership of the next house grows n interest and in importance as mem bers of congress arrive. The general drift of talk brings down the contest to two candidates, and the long list of possible candidates first mentioned are being dropped one after the other for reasons which appears patent to everybody but the candidates them-selves and their friends. For instance, Mr. Frye, of Maine, who loomed up Hamlin's shoes, and that fact precludes the possibility of his occupying the speaker's chair. The same charge is laid at the door of Mr. Conger, of Michigan. The contest between the Bayley and Baldwin facions is very bitter, and their strength s evenly balanced. Herein lies Conger's only hope that of becoming a compromise candidate There remains, according to this way of looking at the matter, but two prominent candidates. Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, and Mr. Kasson, of Iowa. The former gentleman is already on the ground, and the latter has returned to his diplomatic position in Austria, but his
